

THE YERKES SALE, $2,032,250

RUGS AND TAPESTRIES BRING MORE THAN $330,000.

Silk carpet from the Ardabil Mosque to Davenport Brothers for $33,500, the highest price in that category. A Gobelins Tapestry Gown at $17,100.

The Yerkes auction passed the $2,000,000 mark at Mendelssohn Hall last evening, and there are five sessions more of the sale to come next week at the Yerkes residence in Fifth avenue. Of yesterday's two sessions the one in the afternoon sold the rugs and tapestries for $330,000, of which the rugs brought $281,500, and that in the evening, commencing the last of the paintings, $100,000 or a total for the day of $531,500. There was an error in the announced total for Tuesday evening, which was given as $162,250. It was really $162,500, this with Wednesday evening's total of $320,000, Thursday evening's total of $330,000 and yesterday's total of $501,000, makes the grand total to date $2,032,250.

Last evening's sale was in the nature of a clearance of what had not been sold for the first three evenings' offerings. Among the pictures were Madonna and Child in Glory, by Murillo, $1,200; Madonna and Child, St. John and St. Angel, Botticelli, $1,500; and "A Shepherd," Claude Lorrain, $1,500, not exactly selling prices for such eminent names as such a widely hailed collection.

Of the four Guards none went above $125 except the "Grand Canal," which Harry Payne Whitney took at $200,000, the highest price of the evening, and then he asked Henry Duveen, who had been a bidder for it, why he had made him (Mr. Whitney) pay so much for it—a very high figure for a Guardi, at any rate in this country.

At the rug sale in the afternoon there was a large attendance, but the number of collectors of rugs and of those who understand them being much less than in the case of paintings, there was not such demand on the capacity of the hall as at the evening sessions at which the paintings have been sold.

Nevertheless as the bidders sat there and collectively parted with $335,000 for thirty rugs and thirteen tapestries there was keen interest on the part of the more limited number who do pay attention to these fabrics. So far as can be seen on the face of the list of buyers, most or all the rugs remain in this country. The Metropolitan Museum took three of them. Brayton Fox and Lilian Nordica Young were among the purchasers, and among others in the hall were Harry Walters, Charles P. Felt, C. B. Alexander, Thomas B. Clarke, acting Director Edward Robinson of the Metropolitan Museum and J. A. Kimberly, Stamford.

The prices brought by the rugs were in general sensational or record breaking. A partial explanation of the fact that they were not higher was that many of the rugs had been pretty badly used. Some of the finer ones among them would have brought better prices if their condition had been up to the mark demanded by exacting collectors. It must be said, however, that to the enthusiasts the total of the prices was astonishingly high.

The five Polish rugs brought $31,700. When the third one came up (No. 212) the bidders were in a hurry for it and the offer went up rapidly from several carriers until the rug fell to Kelekian at $12,000, the highest price in this list.

The highest figure of the afternoon was paid by Duveen for the silk carpet from the Ardabil Mosque (No. 255), which was knocked down at $35,500. The great mosque carpet from Ardabil, on the other hand, for which it is said Mr. Duveen gave about $50,000, fell at $27,000. The purchaser was Capt. J. R. de la Mar of this city.

The forty-foot Persian state carpet (No. 277) went to Seligmann for $33,000. The rugs which go to the Museum are the oldest Persian carpet (No. 201), the small old Persian carpet from the Ardabil Mosque (No. 216), and the Bagdad sixteenth century carpet (No. 296). The highest price among the tapestries was paid for the Gobelins "Volcan and Venus," which sold at $17,100.
